

POST-DOCTORAL PROGRAM
HEALTH PROMOTION/RISK REDUCTION INTERVENTION WITH VULNERABLE POPULATIONS

Goals of Postdoctoral Program	Faculty Areas of Research	Qualifications
The Health Promotion/Risk Reduction Interventions with Vulnerable Populations is supported by the NINR- institutional research training grant mechanism. Our program reflects the exciting and conceptually coherent integration of two foci: health promotion and risk reduction interventions and vulnerable populations. The goals of the one to two year post-doctoral fellowships are to prepare scientists to study the fundamental mechanisms underlying the health promoting behaviors of individuals and aggregates, and test the efficacy of theoretically valid and culturally appropriate interventions for vulnerable populations.	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Donna Algase – elderly, cognitive, and behavioral issues</li> <li>• Carol Boyd – substance abuse and gender</li> <li>• Barbara Brush – homeless populations</li> <li>• Kimberlee Gretebeck – physical activity and functional ability of older adults</li> <li>• Bonnie Hagerty – depression; self-management</li> <li>• Annie Kao – mother-adolescent relationship, adolescent sexual health</li> <li>• Janet Larson –physical activity and improving the functional status of elderly people with COPD</li> <li>• Carol Loveland-Cherry – family patterns, HPRR interventions with adolescents and families</li> <li>• Lisa Kane Low the experience of childbirth for women and adolescents, the role of Doulas</li> <li>• Kristy Martyn – adolescent risk behaviors</li> <li>• Majorie McCullagh – hearing protection in agricultural workers</li> <li>• Janis Miller – urinary incontinence</li> <li>• Laurel Northouse – cancer effects on families</li> <li>• Penny Pierce – women’s health care and decision making behavior</li> <li>• Joanne Pohl – nurse managed centers</li> <li>• Carolyn Sampselle – women’s self-care, urinary incontinence</li> <li>• Margaret Scisney-Matlock – cognitive representation of hypertension</li> <li>• Julia Seng – PTSD and pregnancy outcomes</li> <li>• Karen Stein – social cognitions, self-concept in emotional and behavioral self-regulation</li> <li>• Antonia Villarruel – HIV sexual risk reduction</li> </ul>	PhD in Nursing or Master’s degree in Nursing and PhD in health-related field, United States citizenship or permanent residency. Applicants will submit: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Letter describing specific research interest in health promotion/risk reduction with vulnerable populations, the fit of the proposed research with the research area of potential mentors (one in Nursing and one in a related discipline) at Michigan, and a summary of career goals</li> <li>• Curriculum vita</li> <li>• Three letters of recommendation</li> <li>• Transcripts of graduate study</li> <li>• Doctoral dissertation and reprints of publication(s)</li> </ul> Either a face-to-face or telephone interview is required
